Youth Opportunity Investments to create Foundation to benefit at-risk youth; appoints Dennis (Denny) Armington as President of Youth Opportunity Foundation

(Indianapolis, Indiana) Youth Opportunity Investments, LLC (YOI), a leader in the management of youth treatment facilities throughout the United States of America, is proud to announce that it has formed a not-for-profit foundation, Youth Opportunity Foundation, to support at-risk youth and programs that provide better options than those currently available.

To lead the formation and operation of Youth Opportunity Foundation, YOI has named Dennis “Denny” Armington as the president of the foundation. Ronald D. Hunter, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of YOI stated, “The appointment of Mr. Armington brings a leader in the health and hospital industry to the foundation. His experience should provide access to opportunities to assemble resources to help at-risk children get needed support for their journey to better living and a better life.” Mr. Hunter continued, “rarely in business does an organization have the privilege of attracting an individual with the breadth of experience and knowledge in administration and clinical management.”

Mr. Armington, past president of Rehabilitation Hospital of Indiana, stated, “I am making a commitment to the Youth Opportunity Foundation because of the advances that YOI is making in a wide range of treatment modalities, particularly trauma-based care and substance abuse, for America’s youth.” The Youth Opportunity Foundation will provide further opportunities for these children that are not currently available with traditional funding sources.
