Youth Opportunity Investments to begin Scholarship Program

Ronald D. Hunter, Chief Executive officer of Youth Opportunity Investments, LLC (YOI), a leader in the management of youth treatment facilities, announced a long-term partnership with Ivy Tech, an Indiana-based post-secondary education institution, to provide scholarships to qualifying students at YOI's youth treatment facilities throughout the United States. Mr. Hunter stated, "The opportunity to partner with one of our nation's leading on-line colleges to provide needed educational opportunities is unprecedented within the nation's juvenile justice system."

The program, which is expected to begin in the first half of 2018, will provide opportunities for qualified youth at all of YOI's campuses to apply for scholarships. Regardless of their length of stay, these grants will help youth who would otherwise not have the option to obtain college instruction to have access to higher education and a step toward a better way of life.
